BUSINESS CLUB HAS LIVELY SESSION MONDAY EVENING

Gas For Antioch, Night
Watchman and Stag
Party Discussed.

The coming of the Public Service company's gas line into Antioch at an early date, perhaps before the close of this year, was the pleasing announcement made Monday evening before the Antioch Business Club, assembled at the Blue Willow Inn for the first club dinner since August 1. The big news was sprung last week when a representative of the Public Service company called here for a plat of the village and sought the co-operation of the village board in securing easement rights in all cases where the gas lines must be laid across private property. A committee of business club members was appointed to render whatever service possible in assisting the village board in the work.

Fifty-Year Franchise
A year ago the Public Service Company sought and obtained a fifty-year franchise from the village board. The announcement of the granting of the franchise was hailed with delight by the public for gas, besides being a great convenience, also means much lower insurance rate for those who have been accustomed to the use of gasoline.

The crew of workmen who have been laying the line to Fox Lake will be available in a few days to begin work on the line to Antioch, according to the announcement made by the Public Service representative, and if weather conditions permit, it is quite possible the line may be completed before the end of this year.

Business Men Want Night Watch
A general discussion of the employment of a nightwatchman for the business district disclosed the fact that a large majority of those present favored the idea. A committee was appointed to see just what could be done toward raising funds for such an officer's salary, but Tuesday at a meeting of the committee and an unofficial meeting of the village board it was learned that the board had decided to amend the business license ordinance now in force and take immediate steps for its enforcement, so the problem of raising funds seems to be solved. On the committee representing the business interests were Otto Klass, George Rhodes and R. T. Corrin.

The contract of Motorcycle Policeman Frank Valenta expired Tuesday, November 15, but it is understood that at the request of the village board Mr. Valenta will serve as nightwatchman until Dec. 6, when the board meets in regular session. At that time it is expected that some recommendation will be made for the employment of a night officer for the winter months.

Soo Gives Encouragement
There are better days ahead for Antioch in the matter of traffic over the Soo Line, according to Assistant General Passenger Agent B. E. Smead, whose message of encouragement was brought to the club by President Robert C. Abt. More passenger traffic during the past season than ever before has shed more light on the situation and it is thought that eventually Soo Line officials will give the problem their attention and work out a satisfactory schedule for commuters from the lake region.

The map committee, headed by Rev. A. M. Krah, reported the sale and distribution of 58,800 maps of the lake region during the season, the greatest single advertising project ever attempted to attract people to the region. Next year distribution is expected to exceed this number.

Otto Klass was appointed chairman of a committee to arrange for a dinner and theatre party for business club members in the near future. Mr. Klass is to be assisted by club members of his own selection.

FIREMEN'S BALL DRAWS THRONG OF MASQUERADEERS

The biggest masquerade ever held provided amusement for the people of Antioch and a wide radius last Thursday evening when the Antioch Volunteer Fire department put on their annual Armistice Day ball at the Palace. Mr. and Mrs. Russell Keulman of Antioch were chosen by the judges as the best dressed couple. They were attired as a Spanish couple. Many other prizes were given to groups, couples and individuals among the throng of masqueraders.

Notification Committee

THREE RECEIVE SENTENCES IN CIRCUIT COURT

Judge C. C. Edwards established a record in the punishment of criminals last Wednesday when he sentenced three men to the state penitentiary. Clifford Robinson, colored, of North Chicago was found guilty of the murder of George W. Tillman, also colored, and sentenced to life imprisonment. Emanuel Romitez, Mexican, of Waukegan, who plead guilty to murder, alleging that he had killed his opponent, Christopher Urena, in self defense, was sentenced to 14 years in prison. Frank Marko, burglar who looted the Fort Sheridan and Haylin depots was sentenced to a period from one to twenty years.

The number of judgments has been exceeded in a day but the meeting out of sentences on three separate charges in one day is an exceptional record.

SPRING GROVE MAN DIES AS RESULT OF HUNTING ACCIDENT

Anthony Freund Meets Death From Own Shotgun.

Anthony Freund of Spring Grove accidentally shot and killed himself last Friday morning. Mr. Freund together with a group of friends from Spring Grove and Chicago, was starting out for a hunting trip. For some reason, he decided to pull his gun, a double barreled shot gun toward him out of the car. As he did so the trigger caught and both shells of the gun discharged into his body. Freund, who is 27 years of age, lived on a farm just out of Spring Grove. He is survived by his wife, his father and mother, and several other relatives.

Funeral services were held at the Catholic church at Spring Grove on Monday morning and interment was made in the Catholic cemetery there.

CITY POLICE WARN OF BAD CHECK ARTISTS

Bad check artists who have procured money on worthless paper in Chicago, Waukegan and Milwaukee through the expedient of using a rubber stamp, are thought to be in this part of the country yet, and city and county authorities are issuing a warning to all to beware of strangers' checks. The checks are made to appear to be pay checks issued by an industrial firm.

SMITH'S HOTEL IS DEMOLISHED IN RAGING NIGHT FIRE

One Building Is Total and Other Partial Loss at Channel Lake.

Fire of unknown origin burned one of the two buildings and partially destroyed a second at the Smith's hotel property at Channel Lake last Thursday. The fire, which broke out at one thirty a. m., raged for three hours before firemen were able to check it and caused a loss estimated in the neighborhood of $30,000. The blaze started in the older of the two buildings and that structure was completely demolished. The Antioch Volunteer Fire department, which hastened to the spot, bent its energies to saving the dining hall which is of cement block construction and to preventing the many cottages and homes nearby from catching fire. The roof of the dining hall was destroyed and the damage from water was heavy but the building and its contents were saved.

The first discovery of the fire was made by Mrs. George Peterson who called the night operator at the telephone exchange to say that she had seen the flames for some time, at first supposing them to be a bonfire, and had finally become alarmed. At the same time, Louis Burgess, the night watchman at the Winch pavilion, spied the flames and sent in an alarm. The Grayslake fire department had been summoned without the knowledge of the local fire department, members of which had discovered upon their arrival that there was no chance of saving the main building. The Grayslake organization arrived to find the fire under control and did not participate in the fighting.

No clue to the cause of the fire has thus far been traced, although the assumption has been made that defective wiring caused it. The theory that tramps might have gained access to the building was scouted as there are many cottages and homes in the immediate neighborhood that are occupied and it is thought improbable that anyone could have made a hangout of the building without being detected.

The hotel is operated by Dr. Hal Smith and is one of the oldest resorts in the lake region. It is open only in the summer season and has been closed since Labor Day.

Men Who Robbed Williams Bros. Store Tried At Waukegan

Selection of the jury in circuit court in the case of White and Foster, held for the robbery of Williams Bros. store last May was completed yesterday and the trial will be held this week.

Both men are working under the disadvantage of a rather checkered career and a lengthy criminal record, and both are the possessors of a string of aliases.

The crime for which they are held was committed last May. The two were arrested at that time by Lake Forest police and the loot was all recovered.

States Attorney Smith and Assistant States Attorney Sidney H. Block will prosecute. Attorney Okel Fugua is defense counsel.

Noted Impersonator Coming to Palace

Richard Maeck, owner of the Antioch Palace, is bringing an orchestra to the amusement hall next week which carries with them a novel feature. Jean La Rae, female impersonator, is able, according to his critics to impersonate a lady so well that even the ladies themselves will be entirely deceived as to his identity when he appears in song and dance acts.

The contest for high school students was held in connection with the five day corn show being held at DeKalb by contestants from the Northeast Section of Illinois competing.

The local boys won second prize for team judging, and Jasper McCormick was fifth high individual in the entire contest. The boys were accompanied to DeKalb by Mr. Kutil,

1200 PEOPLE SEE BIGGEST POULTRY SHOW EVER HERE

Entries Surpass Previous Years in Number and Quality.

More than 1200 people attended the big poultry show put on at the Antioch Township High School gymnasium last Thursday, Friday, and Saturday by the Antioch-Lake Villa Poultry association according to estimates made by C. L. Kutil, secretary of the organization. This is probably the best attendance that the show has ever attracted and amply justifies the part that Antioch merchants and business men have taken in helping to sponsor the show.

Visitors were present from Chicago, Barrington, Lake Zurich, Libertyville, Mundelein, Wauconda, Richmond, McHenry, Wilmot, Burlington, Waukegan and Zion City, in addition to hundreds from Antioch, Lake Villa and the surrounding community.

In all over 800 individual entries were exhibited. These included poultry, eggs, soybeans, dairy calves, pigs and sewing club garments. White Wyandottes, White Plymouth Rocks, Buff Plymouth Rocks, and White Leghorns predominated at this year's show. The quality of the exhibits was superior to that shown at any exhibit in the past, according to officials of the organization.

Pullet Sale Exceptional
The pullet sale on Saturday afternoon was a great success. About 300 pullets were sold at an average of $1.32 a head. Mr. Corrin of the Antioch Sales and Service bought the grand champion pullet at the record price of $8.00. Mr. McCormick of Salem, Wis., bought the most pullets, taking home 86 standard bred pullets.

"Wall" To Have Locks
That the representative's idea of a retaining wall was synonymous with the usual conception of a dam, was evident from the fact that the proposed retaining wall was described as having locks to take care of the traffic, and flood gates and water ways to regulate the flow of the water, so that the chain of lakes could have, at all times, the amount of water necessary to maintain their property values, and the lower Fox river could be supplied with an even steady flow of water throughout the dry period. That neither Mr. McCarty nor the group he addressed recognized the identical character of the dam and the proposed "retaining wall" was equally evident.

The federation went on record as favoring the giving of the control of such a dam, or retaining wall as the lower river representatives are pleased to call it, to the Fox River Conservancy District, and expressed the confidence that the Conservancy Board would control the flow of water to the entire satisfaction of all.

All who discussed the problems of flood and drought in the Fox Valley or of flood control in the Mississippi based their statements on the erroneous notion that there were no such phenomena before the era of civilization.

Make Fox Valley a Beautiful Spot
Mrs. Florence Ward of Batavia urged the organizations up and down the valley to unite in making the Fox Valley one of the beauty spots of America. She protested the erection of sign boards, and the aimless developing of subdivisions without harmonious plan.

"Let us have in the Fox valley a system of parks that will enable the children of the less favored of our own and coming generations to enjoy the beauties of the Fox," said R. Brandon, of Mooseheart. In telling what he expected in valley development.

Delegations from all of the valley communities in the state of Illinois were present at the banquet with the exception of one or two of the smaller and more remote communities. Those in attendance from Antioch were L. O. Bright, principal of the Antioch Township High School, J. C. James, local member of the Fox River Conservancy Board, Miss Grace Rice, of the News staff and S. Boyer Nelson of the First National Bank.

CHICAGO DETOUR ON ROUTE
21 IS NOW ELIMINATED

Armistice Day was observed in Antioch in the usual manner. All stores and places of business closed at twelve o'clock in recognition of the day and the church bells of the Methodist Episcopal, St. Ignatius' Episcopal and St. Peter's Catholic church rang at eleven to mark the moment of devotion in which the world paid tribute to the soldiers who gave their lives in the service of their country during the World War. Streets were flag decked in tribute to the dead on the tenth Armistice Day.

Shoes That Don't Track Are Sold; Customer Is Happy

A pleased customer is more to be desired than anything else. At least that has been the idea of Shultz and Son who recently were enabled, by a very peculiar circumstance, to satisfy a customer who ordinarily would have had to seek far to meet her needs.

Some time ago a pair of ladies shoes shipped to the store were found to be defective in that one or the shoes was a size larger than the other. The shoes were set aside to await the coming of the factory representative who should replace them with a pair which would track the same.

Last week a lady came into the store whose feet were the exact duplicates of the two shoes. She purchased them gladly and departed much elated that she had been able, with such ease to find shoes to fit her, and fond in her praise of the superior service that she had received.

Two small Bibles, a copy of the Diamond Lake Herald, subsequently to become the Libertyville independent, bearing the date of Sept. 10, 1881 and a copy of the Libertyville Times, bearing the date of April 4, 1881 were a part of the contents of the corner stone of the old Presbyterian church of Libertyville. There were also lists of names of the children of the public schools and of the members of the church and its organizations as well as the proverbial wine, corn and oil. Deputy Sheriff Thompson of Walworth who made the gruesome find carried the dismembered foot to the office of the sheriff at Elkhorn. How it came to be in the road is a mystery. It is evidently part of a body taken from the cemetery.

American Legion Notes

(By the American Legion.)

The Executive Committee of the Department of Illinois, the governing body of Legion affairs in this state, met at the La Salle Hotel, Chicago, Illinois, Sunday, October 30, 1927, and decided a number of important matters.

As is customary when a convention is being held in a certain city, the Commander of the District, and Commander of the Post in the city in which the convention is being held, are named on the Convention committee. Accordingly, Edward J. McGeough, the 8th District Commander, was made chairman of the Convention Committee, with Len Hull, Commander, Homer Dahringer Post, Albert M. Carter, The State Commander, Floyd J. Heckel, State Adjutant, John Traeger, Department Sergeant-at-Arms, as additional members. This Committee is not, in any way, to conflict with the committee that Waukegan has already, or will appoint, on this subject.

In the early part of December, five Legion pilgrimages or caravans are going to start simultaneously in different parts of the state, which will travel for twenty-one days and which, it is contemplated, will visit every American Legion Post in the State of Illinois. The object of this caravan is rehabilitation. Undoubtedly there are a large number of ex-service men who are entitled to compensation and who at one time were receiving compensation and their claims were dropped for some reason or other, or ex-service men whose compensation is now much below that to which they are entitled and any and all other subjects of rehabilitation will be taken up at that time. Assistance will also be given to veterans in filing claims for ad-

The new bridge over the Fox river on Route 20 was completed and opened to traffic last week. This completes the state highway from Waukegan to Woodstock and is a part of the route to Chicago. The bridge was begun last December.

Dorothy Grigsby of Waukegan, who has been in the Presbyterian hospital for the past three weeks, suffering from sleeping sickness, has so far rallied from the disease as to be conscious for a few minutes and to eat a little food. Doctors hold out hope for her recovery.

Rear Admiral J. Ziegelmeyer, United States navy, was installed as commandant of the Great Lakes naval station last Thursday, succeeding Captain John F. Hines, resigned.

The child welfare committee of the Shaviv Post of the American Legion of North Chicago is to submit plans to the Park Board of the city to provide additional children's playgrounds. A playground in each child's community is the aim.

Permit for the election of the proposed nurses home to be built in connection with the Victory Memorial hospital was obtained at Waukegan last week. The superstructure of the building is to cost $103,000. It is understood, however, that the structure when complete will cost in excess of $150,000.

Blue laws enacted in Libertyville back in 1883 and which have been exercised more or less since that time in prohibiting of amusements in the village on Sunday will face a test through the decision of owners of a new recreation building which will open Wednesday to test the validity of the law. At the same time the refusal of village boards, based on a long standing, to issue licenses for pool and billiard halls and bowling alleys will also undergo a test.

Working his way around the world, a youth stopped at the federal employment service in Racine for a job to earn enough funds to carry him on his journeys. He works in a city long enough to earn expense money and then moves on—seeking adventure and seeing the world. His earnings are scattered in 700 banks in 31 states. He deposits a dollar in a bank in each city he visits and collects bank books as a hobby. Saturday he earned $3 in Green Bay, deposited a third of the sum in that city, and the remainder in Appleton and Oshkosh. The youth sought employment in Racine and left the city with the bank book of a Racine bank.

A farmer, living near the filter beds that are a part of Elkhorn sewerage system, has the privilege of using the solids for fertilizer and last spring spread quantities on his land. When he was ready to plant his field so treated, he discovered he already had a crop of something. He waited until these young shoots were identified as tomato plants. Late this summer he harvested a tremendous and valuable crop of tomatoes and never planted a seed. This husband man is "sitting pretty" unless it should become fashionable in Elkhorn to consume salads fashioned from the Canadian thistle.

A reign of terror, attributed to bootleggers, has been launched against constables in Kenosha county. After a year's litigation in the Tewes Ice company for whom the two men were at work on the night of the tragedy must pay the full sum of the award to the litigants. The two men were patrolling the channel in Twin Lakes where the Tewes company was engaged in cutting ice blocks. The car crashed through the ice, trapping both men at the bottom of the lake.

That the team will be composed of midgets is a certainty, for very few tall men are included in the squad. Captain John Memler is the only man who seems to have a place clinched. Madden is finding competition for a guard post from Bross, while Richter is fighting for a forward post along with Less Buxton, Wm. Madden, Haggerty and Schmidfeldt. LIBERTYVILLE COPS N.W. CHAMPIONSHIP AS ANTIOTH LOSES 14 to 0 Victory Gives Neighboring Team Season Record.

After that the locals did not have the punch to put it over.

During the second half it began to rain in increasing amounts until near the end of the game there was a regular deluge which made playing almost impossible. During the rain Antioch opened up with a succession of passes which worked well considering the wet ball. Libertyville made another touchdown at the beginning of the fourth quarter. During the last few minutes of play Antioch forced the issue and was near the goal line when the final whistle blew.

Libertyville started out the season with little prospect of a championship team. Gurnee was doped to have the best team since nearly all of their players were veterans of last year's team.

Antioch was given a chance because of their aerial attack. Libertyville however played a heady game, taking advantage of the breaks, and won all of their games though by a small margin.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Labdon, Mrs. Labdon's mother, Mrs. W. S. Westlake, Mrs. Drucilla Ferris and granddaughter, Ruth, left this morning for Melbourne, Florida, where they will spend the winter months at their home there.

Chevrolet Staff Achieve Turkey At Contest Dinner

Salesmen of the local Wetzel Chevrolet Sales company were successful in providing themselves with the turkey at the Turkey-Bean contest banquet held last Thursday at the Palmer House Ball Room in Chicago. Their victory was due to the fact that they were able to sell more cars than the Libertyville Chevrolet Sales dealer, who with his selling staff was forced to sit across the table and eat beans while watching the Antioch crowd consume a sumptuous turkey dinner.

Wetzel Chevrolet Sales also won the honor of ranking the highest in this district, which includes several counties, by selling more of their quota than any other agency.

St. Ignatius' Church Notes

Episcopal

Sunday next before Advent Thanksgiving Sunday.

Kalendar—

9:45 Church School.

11:00 Matins and Sermon.

Next Sunday will be Thanksgiving Sunday and will be celebrated with proper reverence and alms giving at St. Ignatius'. The pastor will preach a Thanksgiving sermon "The Sin of Eve." The President of the Nation has asked us to celebrate Thanksgiving day next Thursday as a special day of prayer and Thanksgiving.

There is great danger that the worthy citizens of the city of Antioch will celebrate the latter in conjunction of the Nation's head but forget the first as usual. It is hoped that some will make an earnest effort to express their joy for the fruits of the earth and all the joys thereof by exercising the privilege of prayer even as the Pilgrim Fathers did. This nation is more rotten morally than it has ever been in its history and as Kipling said to England in the pinnacle of her world power, "Lest we forget" People do what they want to do and no one needs to compel them to do so. Halls around our fair village are crowded and the money flows like golden shekels on the counter. The churches are deserted and poverty stricken and the citizens for over a dollar if pestered sufficiently by the Rev. Clergy. Thank God on Thanksgiving day that the Christian churches of the community may write "They gave the people not what they wanted, but what they needed."

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—From the comfortable financial situation to which he had been born, Peter Millman, American gentleman of the old school, and last of his family, is practically reduced to poverty through the misfortune of a friend, Hassen Brewer, whom he had always trusted.

CHAPTER II.—Learning of Brewer's decline, which means the destruction of his last hope, Millman engages a French father, Achille Lutry, who speaks no English, and is to replace Sned, servant of long standing. By Lutry, Millman sends letters to Prof. Fleming Bradney, Floyd Malet, and Gertrude Barnes, men whom the world has classed as failures, once of high position. In response, the three call on him at his home.

CHAPTER III.—After an excellent dinner, Millman invites his guests into his Japanese garden, where he has related the circumstances which wrecked their careers, he convincing them their misfortunes are directly traceable to the machinations of an unscrupulous enemy, a man who had placed him in financial position and political power by unscrupulous methods, chiefly blackmail. Paul Raxon, Raxon also ruined Brewer, and incidentally Millman.

CHAPTER IV.—Millman explains to his guests how, chiefly through his befriending of Floyd Malet as a great sculptor and the victim of malevolent circumstances, he has succeeded in getting on Raxon's track, learning much to Raxon's discredit, though nothing by which he could be reached legally. Himself impoverished through Raxon's financial blindness, Millman proposes an association of the four men—an association outside the law which shall pull down Raxon and force him to disgorge his ill-gotten financial gains.

CHAPTER V.—Following Millman's disclosures, his three guests, after a consultation, practically decide to join him in the fight against Paul Raxon. Millman explains his ideas, admitting he has no real plan to bring about Raxon's downfall, except to get reliable details about his personal and business life which he has gleaned from Hiram Loddon, Raxon's tool on occasions when wine had loosened Loddon's tongue.

CHAPTER VI.—Raxon's political ambition is the primary factor from his state. McKimber is the leader of the party, and must be eliminated. At his palatial residence, Great Rock, Raxon plans elaborate entertainments to his political interests. Returning to his humble abode, Neeland Barnes finds his daughter, Anita, who had been living with relatives in England. Having no fit home for the girl, Raxon takes her to Millman's, where she is welcomed as a guest. Overhearing the plans of the "conspirators," Anita arranges to join them, assuring them of her confidence she can be of use.

CHAPTER VII.—Mrs. Raxon, aware of her son's plot, and a family hostess falls in with her husband's idea of hiring a well-bred woman and taking her full charge of the household. She engages a "Miss Agatha Brown" (really Miss Anita Barnes) in rake-shing. The girl arranges for the employment of her father and Professor Bradney as footmen in the Raxon household, and the "association" awaits development.

CHAPTER VIII.—Raxon's daughters, personally unattractive, are at once jealous of Anita. Sned, Millman's former butler, is engaged for the same position by Raxon with their son, Robin. Mrs. and Mrs. McKimber are guests of the Raxons. Robin at once falls in love with Anita and proposes marriage. The girl refuses him, aware that his father would oppose his son's marriage to a penniless unknown girl. Neeland Barnes and Bradney arrange a hiding place from which to spy on Raxon to be sure he does not marry Anita.

CHAPTER IX.—In an interview with McKimber, Raxon discusses his knowledge of an incident in the former's life, the publication of which would discredit him politically and socially, and exhibits proof, demanding that McKimber withdraw from the political race in his favor at the price of secrecy. McKimber, the son, though a bit taken aback, is overwhelmed by the apparent proof Raxon holds. From the hiding place Anita takes down the conversation in shorthand, but is visibly depressed when she joins her fellow conspirators.

"It's all right," Bradney whispered, "she says she has everything."

"She must be tickled to death at getting it—oh?"

"On the contrary, she looked depressed. I didn't understand it at the time. Of course, there was physical discomfort and constraint, and the possibility of being found out."

"She'll be all right tomorrow," said Barnes gleefully.

Later he had the opportunity to talk it over with Viscount de Guillain.

"Well?" said the sculptor eagerly. "What happened?"

He listened to what Barnes had to say.

"Has Anita shown you anything yet?"

"No. None of us can go to her room because she's supposed to be out for the evening, and it's locked. Bradney says she wasn't as cheerful as she might have been. I wonder why."

"She might have heard something damaging to McKimber."

"Why should that distress her?"

"Haven't you yet seen that your girl and Robin are in love with one another? My God!" Malet went on passionately, to Barnes' extreme surprise, "are you so blind?"

Floyd Malet had witnessed the whole affair. He was more sensitive to it than his compatriots, because he had fallen hopelessly in love with her himself. It was one of those charming and romantic attachments which come to men of middle years and bring them at first an agony that time transmutes to the trust of friendships, never wholly separated from the love which brought it to flower.

"Nita would do nothing to upset our plans," Barnes said. "If she has one quality above others that I admire, it is loyalty. She'll stick by us."

"Nita's as Good as Fired," Said Barnes.

all the time. I shall be glad to get out of it. I've been talking to the Swedish maids about it. They seem certain she's going and don't want her generous wage-sent to be cut down."

Barnes was presently called into Mr. Raxon's presence.

"It appears," said Raxon, "that you told the other man to fetch me to the telephone for a long-distance call. Central tells me there have been no long-distance calls since luncheon. How did that happen?" He looked keenly at Enry.

"Central," said Enry with lofty scorn. "If I was you, sir, I'd complain about that young woman. I've had to speak to her very severe myself, but she don't care. With your permission, I'd like to call 'er up and give 'er a piece of my mind."

"It would not be a valuable present," Raxon said. "I will see that this does not occur again."

"Anything else, sir?" Enry asked, a trace of insolence in his voice.

CHAPTER X

Mrs. McKimber was only concerned that the girl her son chose should be sufficiently in love with him. She loved beauty, and had been attracted to Agatha at first sight. Mrs. McKimber was prepared to help her son. She realized that it would not be easy to bring her husband to agree with her.

McKimber had learned that a senator, even from the Empire state, does not ex officio find the doors open to him that shelter the great names in American society. He wished Robin to marry into a family which had entree to the best.

When Robin had gladly made the sacrifice, he found the girl put off by his way. She did not flutter to his arms. She was no beggarmaid to his King Cophetua. Gloomily he wondered if she was fond of some other men. The viscount was good looking; he had poise and breeding.

Agatha had been brought up in Europe, where disparity in age is less a bar to marriage than in the United States. They had met before. They had common acquaintances, and the De Guillains, he was told, were all rich. Robin smoked many cigarettes over the problem. He was surprised to hear a knock at his door. It was his father who came in.

"Why, father," he cried, "is there anything the matter?" Mr. McKimber was stooped. His bold, resolute carriage was gone. He looked as one might who had undergone severe mental or physical strain.

"Not a thing," said the elder, with an effort at smiling. "I've been thinking, Robbie, and I see I have made a great many mistakes in my life."

Robin listened in silence. Never before had he heard his father in anything but an assured and contented mood.

"I tried to dictate to you awhile ago," said McKimber, "and I tried to distract the girl you're fond of. I told you if you didn't marry a girl I approved of we should pull apart. I told her that if anyone knowing what money you would inherit thought she could get it by marrying you without my consent, there wouldn't be any money."

Robin's face hardened. "You had no right to do that. We may as well understand one another."

I've asked Miss Brown to marry me. I haven't your social ambitions. If she won't marry me, nobody else will be asked."

"That's the right spirit," said McKimber. His son looked at him amazed. "A man who lets another dictate about whom he's to marry is a weakling and a coward. I didn't. The Bradneys, all except old William, hated me. I wasn't well born or educated. I was a machinist and my hands were thick fingered, and I hadn't any parlor tricks. I married your mother in spite of their lies and plots to separate us."

"Do you mean to say you approve of Miss Brown?"

"That's what I'm trying to tell you. I suppose you are wanting to know why I have changed. Robbie, don't ask me. There are things that happen in a man's life that change him instantly. It may be the ghost of old follies which rises to remind him of what he has forgotten. No, don't ask me, Robbie, but just bring the girl to your mother and me. She shall never want for love where we are."

He walked heavily from the room. His son could not comprehend this astounding change. There was a streak of light in his father's face. Not since Robin was a boy had he been called "Robbie." But his speculation on the cause of the change was lost in joy at what it meant to him. Agatha told him she would be back at about ten. He looked at the clock. It was past two. Eight weary hours before he could see her!

At seven he was on the golf links playing a few holes. Three hours to wait. At eight o'clock he saw her coming slowly in his direction.

"I didn't think you were going to return so early," he said, smiling "Agatha, how lovely you look."

"I feel miserable," she said soberly.

"Darling," he whispered, "how can you feel miserable on this bright, glorious morning?"

Nothing could depress him now. There was a look in her eyes that told him what he wanted to know.

"You know, Robbie, one isn't always free to do as one likes. I think if I had foreseen this week I should not have had courage enough to endure it. Robbie, we must both of us forget it."

"Forget the only week I have lived," he cried. "Never." Her air of decision communicated itself to him. "Tell me why I should?"

"There are so many things," she said slowly. "One is your father's objection. I like him because he sets such store by you, but I'm not going to come between you and him."

Robin laughed joyously. "Don't worry about him. He's for you now just as strongly as mother is. He thinks you are just the girl to look after me for life. You've conquered him. He just had to give in, so what more is there to say?"

Looking at him it seemed to the girl that the task she had set herself was beyond her strength. Why she asked herself, to find in Robin McKimber the only man she could love? How could she tell him that she must choose between her sworn loyalty to her father and his comrades and her love for him? She was associated with men who had determined to get from him on safe the documents which incriminated John McKimber and made the realization of his ambitions impossible. She saw, very clearly, what course Peter Millman would pursue and how in the carrying out of his plans of revenge he would have no consideration for the McKimmers.

"There is more to say," she told him, her voice trembling a little. "My dear, it is the hardest thing to say Robin, it's good-bye."

"Good-bye," he repeated. "Agatha, what do you mean?"

"That I am leaving here today and shall not see you again. Don't ask me to explain. I can't tell you anything except that there is something which makes all the things I hoped impossible."

She could see the gray under his tanned skin. She knew she had wounded him bitterly. There was a terrible quietness in his distinct, clear voice.

"Then you never really loved me?"

"I did," she said simply; "that's what makes it so hard."

"If you love me," he cried, "nothing can come between us."

"Something has come between us. I do love you, Robin, and I shall never care for anyone else; but there is someone who needs me more than you do."

"I'm not going to say good-bye," he said gently.

"But you must," she insisted. "It is all over, Robin. One little week of happiness and years and years of regret."

Suddenly she turned from him and walked away. He followed with his beaming gestures until he saw that Dr. Guillain was approaching. It seemed that Agatha almost ran to the older man.

"What have you been doing on this lovely morning?" Malet asked.

"Breaking my heart, I think," she answered. "Please walk back to the house with me. I don't want to have to speak to anyone."

Malet was not deceived by the smile with which she tried to hide her suffering. He wished he had words to help her. He walked to the big house, his heart aching because she was hurt.

He wondered what it was about. Of course, it had to do with young Robin McKimber. He felt he hated the tall, handsome lad who had the power to wound this lovely daughter of his.

you were one of our friends instead of being hired to help."

Miss Brown could even smile.

"I am quite sure," she said sweetly, "that nobody who knows me would ever suspect me of being your friend."

"And you needn't apply to us for recommendations," shouted the girl.

"I shall not," said Miss Brown calmly. She gave a little smile and how left.

Mrs. Raxon wished she could walk like that. She was filled with a sudden sense of having acted badly. She had never let her daughters know how much she admired her social career. The girl had made no vulgar scene, as Mrs. Raxon had dreaded. She had not raised her voice; nor had she begged for another chance. She was calm, aloof, superior. Mrs. Raxon looked at her own daughter a little sourly.

"How I'm to arrange the menus and see the servants do their work I don't know."

"Hire someone else," said Gertrude. "And let me see her first."

LICENSE PLATES FOR 1928 TO BE MAROON-WHITE

New Highway Contracts And State News Told by Secretary.

Secretary of State L. L. Emmerson has been sending to the 1,040,000
motor vehicle owners of the state, applications for automobile licenses for 1928. Thirty thousand letters were put in the mails just recently as the first of the series.

The plan was decided upon recently by a view of giving service to automobile owners as early as possible next year; each blank is accompanied by a return envelope together with a letter from Secretary Em-meron.

The license plates for 1928 will have white figures on a field of maroon.

In spite of the fact that Illinois has no one waiting to die in the electric chair, the state is going forward with plans for the construction of the death dealing devices in the Joliet and Chester penitentiaries.
State Architect William Lindstrom
is the man who will design the chair.
The bill abolishing hanging in Illinois and providing that persons sentenced to death shall be electrocuted says that it shall apply only in crimes committed since July 1 of this year.

Since the passage of the law, a number of persons have applied for the job as official executioner but the law does not provide a salary for such work. One offer to sell the state an electric chair was turned down and the state will build its own.

It is the aim of State Architect Lindstrom to make the death chamber somewhat attractive; his original plan has outlined arrangements by which a group of buttons would be placed in position, one of them connecting the current which would snuff out the life of the one convicted.
By this means, several persons would push the buttons upon signal from the prison warden.

Legal questions came up and have been decided by Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom. They have caused changes to be made in the original plans. The Attorney General has held that only one person can act as executioner, hence the use for only one button. This phase of the law says, "The warden of the penitentiary, wherein the execution is to occur,
shall supervise such execution and may, in writing, with the approval of the governor, specially designate and appoint a suitable and competent person to act under his direction, as executioner in any particular case."

The state division of highways has awarded the following contracts:

Route 64, section 130ft, DuPage
county, bridge, to Ferguson Construction company, Rockford, $9,341.56.

Route 163, section 102, Crawford county, pavement, to D. E. Alm-baugh, Sullivan, Indiana, $30,945.06.

Route 142, section 104, Marion-Fayette counties, pavement, to R. A.
Haun, Paris, Illinois, $188,775.84.

Chicago will be the poultry capital of America, November 28 and 29,
when the National Poultry Council and allied organizations convene, according to Stillman J. Standard, director of the state department of agriculture.

This convention of poultry specialists is scheduled in accordance with the plans of other sessions of national importance in the poultry industry. On November 30, a conference of agricultural department officials and others from all states is called to discuss plans for uniformity in state regulations governing official recognition of quality and freedom from disease in poultry stocks, hatch-eries and chicks.

Know Illinois

Illinois spends $140,000,000 annually on its public schools. Salaries take 63 per cent of the expenditures.

There are more customers of electric light and power, gas and telephone companies in Illinois than there were inhabitants of the original thirteen states in 1785.

The shells of 24 of the 43 varieties of mussels found in the Rock river in Illinois are suitable for making buttons.

More boys than girls are born in Illinois, the ratio being 106 boys to 100 girls, census bureau data shows.

Six per cent of the gas mains and approximately 8½ per cent of the people of the United States using manufactured gas are in Illinois.

poultry judging teams compete for honors. The national association of state marketing officials and the Live Stock Sanitary association also hold their annual meetings in Chicago
at that time.

State Treasurer Garrett D. Kinney has credited to the revenue fund a total of $827,186.01 on earnings on state funds during the first ten months of his term of office, according to a financial statement just issued.
The earnings for October were approximately $84,000. The report showed that the state had on hand a balance of $41,604,027.77 at the beginning of November. Interest earnings during Mr. Kinney's term of office were highest last July when the figures mounted to $97,039.76.
The bonded indebtedness of the state is $145,296,500 of which $97, 000,000 is in state highway bonds and $48,296,500 in soldiers' compensation bonds.

Farmers in Illinois selling cream are receiving fairer tests for butterfat content than they did a year ago, according to a comparison of cream station inspection records for October of this year and last. During October 1926, of the 78 cream buying stations checked for inaccuracy in tests, 20 or almost one out of every four were operating illegally. Last month's records, as reported to S. J.
Standard, director of agriculture, by Walter R. Kimsey, recently appointed superintendent of foods and dairies, show that 121 cream stations were subjected to inspection. Among them, 17, or about 14% were found to be operating illegally. Records of other months, compared to the corresponding period in 1927 show similar improvement, the report states.

last of the hard roads included under the $60,000,000 bond issue. The high-

Bloomington to Champaign-Urbana.
It connects at Bloomington with Route No. 4, Chicago to East St.

Indiana state line; and Route No. 2,
the longest hard road in the state,
extending from the Wisconsin state line to Cairo. It also connects with Route No. 10, Springfield to the Indiana state line, and Route No. 25,

Codification of the statutes of Illinois from 1870 to the present time is a task confronting DeWitt Bill-mann, secretary of the Illinois legislative reference bureau. The task was imposed upon the department by an act of the last session of the general assembly and a special appropriation of $25,000 was made.

Plans for revising the statute which is now a very large volume have been under consideration for some years. The movement has been endorsed by number of legal organizations and this bill after being presented to the general assembly, was approved by both branches and signed by Governor Small, June 29 last.

HUNTING TRIP BRINGS TRAGEDY TO CHICAGO MAN

A hunting trip into Lake County ended in tragedy for one of a party of three Chicago men when their auto skidded and overturned on the Belvidere road near Grayslake last Thursday morning. The trio had gotten off to an early start and were bound for Lake Villa where they hoped to hunt pheasants. The dead man is Harry Kehm, of 4410 North Western avenue. He had his chest crushed and suffered from internal injuries. Charles Rudd, driver of the car, also of Chicago, sustained a sprained arm and minor injuries. The third was uninjured.

According to the testimony of the two who survived and of S. Stedman of Libertyville who saw the accident, the Chicago car was crowded off the road by a Ford Sedan and in attempting to regain the pavement the driver overturned the car. The license number of the sedan was not learned so authorities hold out little hope of discovering the identity of the driver.

Inquest was held in Grayslake on Thursday and a verdict of "accidental death" returned by the jury.
